Effective May 29, 2021 the Commonwealth of Massachusetts updated Covid-19 mandates as follows:

- With the exception of remaining face-covering requirements for public and private transportation systems (including our van and NEET rides) and facilities housing vulnerable populations, all industry restrictions were lifted, and capacity increased to 100% for all industries. The gathering limit was rescinded. All industries are encouraged to follow CDC guidance for cleaning and hygiene protocols.
- Non-vaccinated individuals are advised to continue wearing face masks and to continue distancing in most settings. The advisory also recommended fully vaccinated individuals no longer need to wear a face covering or social distance indoors or outdoors except for in certain situations (as mentioned above). We understand some folks will feel more comfortable continuing to wear a mask. That is a personal choice and your decision will be respected. Please also note these guidelines are subject to change. For more information, visit www.mass.gov or www.cdc.gov.

JUNE/JULY 2021
CNewbury, MA 036-5372
On August 2, 1909, Mr. Edwin A. Grozier, Publisher of The Boston Post, forwarded to The Board of Selectmen of 700 towns in New England a gold-headed ebony cane with the request that it be presented with compliments of The Boston Post to the oldest male citizen in town, to be used by him as long as he lives (or moves from the town), and at his death handed down to the next oldest citizen of the town. In 1930, after considerable controversy, eligibility for the cane was opened to women as well.

On Wednesday, April 29, 2021 Cornelia Mathieu (Connie to her friends and family), who turned 99 years old just five days later, joined the list of Newbury residents to be honored with The Boston Post Cane. Due to Covid-related restrictions the celebration was kept small. Connie’s son-in-law, Wayne Peabody, gave the group that was gathered a glimpse into Connie’s history, providing details about her parents passages from Greece and Turkey to America through Ellis Island; Connie and her four sisters growing up in Newburyport; working at Towle Silversmiths; her civilian service in the United States Coast Guard during World War II (as Connie believed it was her duty to support the troops); and getting married and raising their daughter, Leslie. Two Boatswain’s Mates from the United States Coast Guard were on hand to honor Connie’s service and Select Board Vice Chair Alicia Greco presented the cane to Connie on behalf of the Town of Newbury. Anastasia’s Flowers on Main in Byfield donated a beautiful corsage to help Connie celebrate as well. Connie’s advice for a long, meaningful life: “Think positive. You have to be happy and not get down on people.” Congratulations, Connie!

Connie Mathieu (seated) is pictured with her granddaughter Lisa O’Brien, granddaughter Holly Clough, daughter Leslie Peabody, son-in-law Wayne Peabody, and granddaughter Michele Ouellette.
Advance Care Planning

There are many things in life that are out of hand. Yet one thing that we are in charge of is our health and our health care decisions. That is, until we become incapacitated and are unable to choose for ourselves. Unfortunately we do not know when that day will come, so planning is of the essence. If we do not plan and share our ideas with those we love, they will not know what our wishes are at the very time we need them to act on our behalf.

Find an opportunity to talk with family members and loved ones about your wishes and decisions that you may have to make. Maybe use newspaper articles, movies, and experiences of others as examples of situations that may arise to open a dialogue.

Instead of thinking of this as one big conversation, several smaller talks may be better and less overwhelming. Here are some conversation starters:

- What do you think about the care that your neighbor received when they were facing a life-threatening illness?
- What medical treatments are acceptable to you? What are unacceptable?
- If you are seriously or terminally ill, do you want to be hospitalized or stay at home? Are you aware of options like hospice?
- Who do you want to make decisions for you if you cannot? Medical? Financial?
- Have you consulted an attorney/financial advisor to get all of your legal and financial affairs in order?
- What are your religious and spiritual beliefs and traditions? What are your beliefs about quality of life, death, and the after-life? Perhaps a visit to your clergy may be beneficial.
- Have you included your doctor in your planning process?
- What does life support treatment mean to you?
- Under what conditions would you want life support treatments?
- Are there conditions in which you would not wish to be kept alive?
- If asked, how would you like to be remembered?
- If you wish to have a memorial service, what would you want to have included (music, readings, etc.)?

Here are additional things to think about:

- Have you consulted an attorney/financial advisor to get all of your legal and financial affairs in order?
- What are your religious and spiritual beliefs and traditions? What are your beliefs about quality of life, death, and the after-life? Perhaps a visit to your clergy may be beneficial.
- Have you included your doctor in your planning process?
- What does life support treatment mean to you?
- Under what conditions would you want life support treatments?
- Are there conditions in which you would not wish to be kept alive?
- If asked, how would you like to be remembered?
- If you wish to have a memorial service, what would you want to have included (music, readings, etc.)?

By going through this process, your family will not have to guess what you want. They will understand what you really want and need.

There is a widely used booklet called "Five Wishes," which is a living will that talks about your personal, emotional, and spiritual needs as well as your medical wishes. It lets you choose the person you want to make the health care decisions for you if you are unable to make them for yourself. Five Wishes lets you say exactly how you wish to be treated if you become seriously ill. It was written with the help of The American Bar Association's Commission on Law and Aging and the nation’s leading experts in end-of-life care. The Five Wishes consist of: the person I want to make decisions for me when I cannot; the kind of medical treatment I want or do not want; how comfortable I want to be; how I want people to treat me; and what I want my loved ones to know. The Newbury Council on Aging is fortunate to have a limited number of Five Wishes booklets available. To receive a copy for a suggested donation of $5.00 please contact Janet at 978-462-8114.
