Medicare Info

Appeals are an important right of Medicare beneficiaries. There may be times when you feel that you or a loved one are being discharged from the hospital, rehab, or home care service before being ready to leave. There are appeal rights which means that trained medical professionals will review the medical record and make a decision. Timing is important & these are the steps you should take: Talk with your doctor about continuing your care. Ask the discharge planner/social worker for an official (written) Medicare notice.

1) Follow the instructions on that notice including contacting MassPRO (Peer Review Organization) right away (800-252-5533); they will inquire why you feel it is too soon and will review your medical record.

2) MassPRO will notify you of their decision by phone and follow up with a letter; further appeal rights will be included in that letter.

MassPRO can also be contacted for Quality of Care complaints; this means dissatisfaction with the care received from a doctor or other Medicare provider (nursing home, home health agency, and outpatient therapy). Please call (800-252-5533).

HEARING SCREENING

On Tuesday, June 21, 2016 from 10:00 am to 12:00 noon, we will be hosting a Hearing Clinic at our Senior Center. In just 10 minutes North Shore Hearing Center can check your ear canal and screen you for hearing loss with an audiometer. They can assess the condition of your existing hearing aids, answer questions you may have and help replace your batteries. Call us today at 978-462-8114 to sign up for your free one-on-one hearing screening.

Appointments are required.

Last fall Elizabeth Lonseth published The Dangers of Denial: Embracing the Challenges of Alzheimer’s and Dementia, a book on the dangers both for the elder left at risk but for the caregiver as well. While this book focuses mostly on elders with dementia, the advice is good for any caregiving person trying to wish away situations that require intervention. An elder at risk can get lost, hurt themselves (or others), have a home accident, suffer from poor nourishment or poor judgment, overdose on prescriptions (or unknowingly stop taking them), or become a victim of elder abuse (including financial exploitation). But, what about the caregiver? What are their risks? Ms. Lonseth lists dangers of denial for family members:

- Losing the chance to make special memories. Learn to deal with the disease so that you can enjoy the time you have left.
- Forfeiting being the best advocate for your parent. If you deny the problem, a representative from one of the agencies involved may become your parents advocate, someone who has known them only briefly and likely does not love them.
- Not getting legal papers in order. You must have a Durable Power of Attorney to deal with legal and financial issues that arise and your parent must give you this power while they are still cognitively sound to avoid a legal challenge.
- Family conflict. Siblings in denial may charge those who aren’t with “over reacting.” Do not add to the burden our family is experiencing.
- Denying the need for help in caring for an elder can lead to all sorts of stress related illnesses. Family caregivers over 66 have a 63% higher mortality rate than non-caregivers.

And, she offers these tips on facing denial:

- Get educated ~ and the sooner the better. For dementia, the best place to start is ALZ.org, the official Alzheimer’s Association website. There are many websites and blogs relating to caregiving and while you can get endlessly bogged down, check out a few and then move into action.
- Start a journal to help articulate your thoughts and identify your fears and anger (the two key emotions that identify denial).
- Seek out a friend or family member, even a professional counselor, to talk about your denial.
- Create a team approach including not only family and friends but also service providers.
- Recognize anger as a sign, do not lose your sense of humor, and get whatever supports both professional or informal you need.
- Be aware of the risks involved in denial. Try to recognize when there is a problem and be the strong advocate your parents need. And show your children how it is done.

VOLUNTEER CORNER

On April 27th, the Annual Volunteer Appreciation Luncheon was held at the Village Pancake House in Rowley. We really appreciate their years of service they have given to our organization and a thank you to all of the volunteers for their dedication!

Elder Pet Food Fund
The Newbury COA is supporting Animal Control Officer Carol Larocque’s Elder Pet Food Fund to aid elders who have pets and are having trouble paying for their food. If you could use help temporarily feeding your pet, call the COA at 978.462.8114 and tell the Receptionist your name and your pet’s favorite brand and flavor. Carol will deliver the pet food to your door. Want to help her with this effort? Cash donations are gratefully accepted. The spring Chocolate Tour of Newburyport (with about twenty participating downtown stores) is an annual supporter of this program; it also provides local C.O.A.’s with money to help with medical prescriptions.
